Challenges faced during ERP Implementation

By Margik Doshi

Challenges

Assessment of existing processes

- It involves assessing an organization's operational inefficiencies, disparate systems, and challenges in data management.
- It is imperative for the business to engage with a consulting partner to conduct a comprehensive assessment of pain points and objectives.

Challenges:

- Inefficient internal communication
- Inadequacy of required skills for assessment
- Lack of manpower to handle assignment

Challenges

Resource Identification

- One of the most critical aspect for the implementation process is to identify the key resources who will be involved in the entire process.

Challenges:

- Having team with the required skillsets
- Identifying a project manager
- Identifying key resources from each functional area

Challenges

Selecting the right ERP

- In the context of aligning with the business requirements, a critical decision must be made in the selection of the product.

Challenges:

- Lack of expertise to analyze the product
- Unreasonable promises made by the vendors during presales
- Distracting from the original requirements
